

Minds Bodies Machines Draft Programme

Friday 6th July

9.00-9.45	Registration, coffee available
9.45-10.00	Opening remarks – Hilary Fraser, Deirdre Coleman
10.00-11.00	Plenary 1 Jonathan Sawday (University of Strathclyde): Calculating Engines: Minds, Bodies, and Machines on the Eve of the Enlightenment. Chair: Hilary Fraser
11.00-12.30	Session 1 (Parallel Panels)
	(a) Mechanizing affect Ildiko CSENGEI (Pembroke College, Cambridge): The Feeling Machine: La Mettrie, Adam Smith, and the Problem of Sympathy Nicola PARSONS (University of Sydney): Corporeal Presses: The Body of the Grub Street Author Fiona BRIDEOAKE: (University of Melbourne): The Republic of Pemberley: Politeness and Citizenship in Virtual Sociability	(b) Automata Katherine INGLIS (Birkbeck): Automata and Suffering Bodies in Dickens's The Old Curiosity Shop and Our Mutual Friend Lisa NOCKS (Fordham University): From Imagination to Invention: The Metamorphosis of the Humanoid Concept in the Late Nineteenth Century Gary FARNELL (University of Westminster): The "Literary Machine": A Dream of Automatic Literary Production in New Grub Street
	(c) Spectacles and scenes of technology Magarida MEDEIROS (Universidade Nova de Lisboa): From Machine to Body: Photography and some Weird Discursive Formations in Nineteenth Century Popular Science Stephen MONTEIRO (University of Paris, Panthéon-Sorbonne): Veiling the Mechanical Eye: Antoine Claudet, Early Photography and London's Spectacle of Technology Warren STEELE (University of Glasgow): Body in Motion, Body in Flux: X-Rays, Photography, and the Representation of Human Movement in Nineteenth Century Science
12.30-1.30	Lunch (own arrangements)
1.30-2.30	Plenary 2 Caroline Arscott (Courtauld Institute of Art): Mutability and Deformity: Models of the Body and the Art of Burne-Jones. Chair: Nicola Bown
2.30-4.00	Session 2 (Parallel Panels)
	(a) Inanimate bodies Patricia PULHAM (University of Portsmouth): [T]his new electro-human creature': The Eroticism of Artificial Flesh in Villiers de L'Isle Adam's L'Eve Future Carmen LARA-RALLO (University of Malaga): Minds, Bodies, and Machines in the Fact and Fiction of Henry Wellcome's Collection Roberta CRISCI (University of Melbourne): Edgar Degas (1834-1917) and the Body as Machine	(b) Automatic creativity Paul CROSTHWAITE (Newcastle University): Clockwork Automata, Artificial Intelligence, and Why the Body of the Author Matters Chris MILES (Eastern Mediterranean University): Late C19 Automatism and Proto-Cybernetic Communication: The Case of Austin Osman Spare Mario GOMES (University of Bonn): Telepathic machinery
	(c) Body language Meegan KENNEDY (Florida State University): The Sphygmograph and the Physician: Writing -- and Reading -- the Language of the Body Jim MUSSELL (Birkbeck): The Progress of Pandemics: the 1890 Influenza Outbreak, Computer Viruses, and the Language of Contagion Laura SALISBURY (Birkbeck): Aesthetics of Trepanation: Bullets, Brains and the Revolution of the Word
4.00-4.30	Coffee
4.30-5.30	Plenary 3 Peter Otto (University of Melbourne): Minds, Bodies and Virtual Reality in Jeremy Bentham's Panopticon Machine. Chair: Deirdre Coleman
5.30-6.30	Plenary 4 Iain McCalman (University of Sydney): A Radical's conversion. Spirit, Mind and Natural Selection in the thought of Alfred Russel Wallace. Chair: Jo McDonagh
6.30 onwards	Drinks then dinner at 7.30

Saturday 7th July

9.00-9.30	Registration, coffee available
9.30-10.30	Session 3 (Parallel Panels)
	(a) Cyborgs, hybridity, monsters	(b) "Terribly-destructive turmoil"	(c) Redefining Humanity
	Tomas DVORAK (Institute of Philosophy, Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic): "Living Tissue over a Metal Endoskeleton" - and Vice Versa Dunja MOHR (University of Erfurt): The Art of Self-Reproduction: Reconstructing the Monstrous Self	Aristotle TYMPAS & Fotini TSAGLIOTI (University of Athens): Automation's Darkest Hour: Mechanical Minds, Steam Engine Explosions, Mutilated Bodies Fabienne COLLIGNON (University of Glasgow): Uncanny Agents	Tamara KETABGIAN (Beloit College): Natural Theology among the Machines: Vision and Technology in Babbage and Wells Paul WHITE (Cambridge): The Face of Physiology
10.30-11.00	Coffee
11.00-12.00	Plenary 5 Steven Connor (Birkbeck): Air-Looms and Influencing Machines. Chair: Jim Mussell
12.00-1.00	Plenary 6 Jay Clayton (Vanderbilt University): Victorian Epigenesis: Inherited Behaviour Without Genetics. Chair: Sally Ledger
1.00-2.00	Lunch (own arrangements)
2.00-3.00	Plenary 7 Elizabeth Wilson (University of New South Wales): Artificial Minds and the Machinery of Affectivity: The Case of Walter Pitts. Chair: Roger Luckhurst
3.00-4.30	Session 3 (Parallel Panels)
	(a) Faulty bodies and machines	(b) Writing science / science writing	(c) Modelling the technological imaginary
	Mary CAPELLO (University of Rhode Island): Foreign Body Ingestion in the Age of Chevalier Jackson Jean WALTON (University of Rhode Island): Reverse Peristalsis Lee SCRIVNER (Birkbeck): "The City of Dreadful Night" in the Age of Insomnia	Daniel BROWN (University of Western Australia): Molecular Machines and Lascivious Bodies: Clerk Maxwell's Verse-born Attack on Tyndallic Reductionism Marie BANFIELD (Birkbeck): Analogies of Mind and Body: Mind, Matter and Metaphor in Science and Fiction at the Victorian Mid Century and in the Post Darwinian Decades Suzy ANGER (University of British Columbia): Conscious and Unconscious Machines: Automations, Evolution, and Consciousness in George Eliot & Samuel Butler	Natalie CHAMP (Vanderbilt University): Modelling the Future: Technology and Human Evolution in The Coming Race and Erewhon Andy WHITE (University of Ulster): The Technological Imaginary: the Nineteenth Century's Gift to the Twenty-first Stephen SHEEHAN (University of Sydney): Clocks & Creatures: The Transmutation of Machine & Organism over the Long Nineteenth Century
4.30-5.00	Coffee
5.00-6.00	Plenary 8 Kevin Warwick (University of Reading): Upgrading Humans via Implants – Why Not? Chair: Steven Connor
6.00-6.15	Closing remarks		